Roy Schoeman, was born in a suburb of New York City of Jewish parents who had fled Nazi Germany. His Jewish education and formation were received under some of the most prominent Rabbis in contemporary American Jewry. His secular education includes a B.Sc. from M.I.T. and an M.B.A. magna cum laude from Harvard Business School. Midway through a career of teaching and consulting (he had been appointed to the faculty of the Harvard Business School) he experienced an unexpected and instantaneous conversion to Christianity which led to a dramatic refocus of his activities. Now he teaches theology at Ave Maria University (Naples, Florida) and Holy Apostles Seminary (Cromwell, Connecticut). He has appeared numerous times on EWTN shows, helped produce and host a Catholic Television talk show, and has written extensively, including three books, on the relationship between Judaism and the Catholic Faith. He has spoken and given retreats and conferences around the world, and his appearance and books have been recommended by Bishops and lay people alike, including Cardinal Raymond Burke, Most Rev. Victor Galeone and Dr. Alice Von Hildebrand.
